VI EDICIÓN DE LA PAZ DE LAS ALPUJARRAS

“Un viaje histórico a la España morisca y cristiana del siglo XVI”

The year is 1570. For two long years the moriscos, who are up in arms in the Alpujarras, have fought for the land and traditions of their ancestors. Until recently, the royal troops have been unable to break their resistance. Sallying forth from their hideouts and caves, the monfi warriors, supported by ottoman and barbary volunteers, engage in quick skirmishes against the royal troops. They have become a major headache for Philip II, the “prudent king”, who has been forced to hand over the command of the campaign to his setpbrother, the energetic don Juan de Austria.

With the arrival of professional troops, the mighty and legendary spanish tercios, Aben Aboo and the morisco leaders decide to come to terms and ask for peace... a peace that will be signed in the town of Padules.

Almost 450 years ago, moriscos and christians fought over this land for their faith, for their king and for achieving a long-lasting peace. This 2018, the Council of Padules, in collaboration with the Almeria Provincial Council and alongside with reenactors and visitors from all over Spain and abroad, celebrates the seventh edition of Peace of the Alpujarras through an exceptional and meticulous historical reenactment.

An open window to the past, from which you'll be able to see how our ancestors lived, fought and died.
